

Cobar Shire Council's record of open access information that it does not make publicly available on the basis of an overriding public interest against disclosure

Under the Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPA Act), when deciding whether or not to release information, government agencies must consider whether there is an overriding public interest against releasing the information.

For more information on how government agencies apply the public interest test when determining whether or not to release information, access a special fact sheet on this topic from the Office of the Information Commissioner website www.oic.nsw.gov.au.

The table below includes information Cobar Shire Council has decided not to release based on an overriding public interest against disclosure.
